Don Gillman Tells Radio Psychology

Vice-President of Nation Broadcasting Company Explains Advertising to Psych. Club

Inside Story of Chain Programs Described for Students

In the absence of Carlton Morse, author of "One Man's Family," the Psychology Club heard Don Gillman, vice-president of NBC radio system, speak on "The Psychology of Radio Advertising and Its History" on Monday, October 16, in the Activities Room.

"No other activity in the world must be so predicated to all people, thinkers and non-thinkers, as the radio," was Mr. Gillman's opening statement to the Psychology Club.

Early Stages
The speaker first discussed the early stages of radio development. About twelve years ago the most popular phase of the radio was the novelty of building a radio set and getting distance regardless of static. "The microphones, and transmitters, then used were not adequate to enable the human ear to hear," stated Mr. Gillman.

"Today, we have chain programs and the novelty of building a radio is practically obsolete," said the speaker. "The ability to hear is mental, so a person's attitude is extremely important. One must develop the ability to concentrate, listen attentively and intelligently to the voice."

Methods Differ
In England, the broadcasting is not operated by the government, but by the British Broadcasting Corporation, which is financed by the government. In England, the broadcasting corporation gives the people programs that they consider appropriate.

Due to competition in America, the various broadcasting stations give the people what they want. Each chain sponsors a program that will attract the audience, each trying to outdo the other. "In America," said Mr. Gillman, "the people want speed and no delays in the program, or they will turn to another station, while in England there may be a delay of eight to ten minutes between programs."

Development Rapid
Today people do not care where a program is being broadcast as long as the reception is clear. The radio has been perfected so that tones are received from 30 cycles, which is equivalent to the tone of the lowest note on the organ, to 9000 cycles, corresponding to the highest note on the violin.

The parabolic microphone, which is the newest microphone in the radio field, acts as a searchlight. The voice of a speaker is caught. A microphone is fastened to his lapel and one continues to hear the speaker, while the operator picks up another voice in the same manner. In this way the various speakers at conventions are brought into listeners' homes.

"In presenting programs, we must appeal to all types of people. Before us is a great audience and it is up to us to satisfy them," concluded Mr. Gillman.

The Psychology Club is planning to have many prominent speakers address the club this semester. The entire student body is invited to attend these lectures, at which men and women outstanding in various fields will discuss psychology in relation to their professions.

REGISTRAR'S NOTES

- Eleventh Week:
October 23-28
- Teaching assignments published.
  - High Freshmen should have taken the pre-professional tests and filed applications to minor fields.
  - High Sophomores should have made application for admission into professional training and should have completed interviews with the registrar.
  - Kindergarten-primary students should have completed their piano tests.
  - If there are any students wishing to change departments or major and minor fields, it is important that the change be taken care of this week in order to avoid unnecessary rush prior to re-registration. Changes of this kind will affect program making.
- Twelfth Week:
October 30—November 4
- End of second mid-term for lower division students.

A. M. S. Plan to Find Room for Men's Meetings

Group Plans Changes in Constitution to Improve Spirit

At the meeting of the Associated Men Students on Friday, October 13, Allen Howard, president of the association, said: "Since talking with many members of the A. M. S., I definitely feel that something must be done to create more lively interest in the association."

According to Howard, the attendance at the meetings has been decreasing, and there is a general lack of spirit and co-operation, not only from the members, but also from the general student body.

Tentative plans were made at the meeting on October 6 to present the winning indoor baseball team with pins, designating the co-operative spirit of the A. M. S. The plan was voted down at the following meeting, after much discussion, because the league had not shown the good spirit when they scheduled their games for Fridays, and at the same hour that the association held its meetings.

Constitution Discussed
There was much discussion on the proposed re-amending of the constitution, also that new amendments to the constitution should be made. By making these improvements, more interest will be created and the meetings should have better attendance.

The following committee was appointed to discover ways and means by which the association may accomplish the end in view. It will make a report at the next meeting on its findings. Fred Guat is chairman of the committee, which is composed of Ed Minassian, Al Parrish, Bob Links, and Lester Stoberg.

Will Have Meeting Place
Howard further quotes, "Because the A. M. S. are temporarily without a clubroom is no indication that this is to be permanent. Plans are being formulated whereby some suitable place may soon be obtained. I have undertaken to appoint a committee for the revision of the present constitution because at the present time there is no suitable provision whereby we can create interest and make the organization one that can really function according to the growth of this college."

Mr. King Plans Showing of Chinese Play Tomorrow

"The Turtle Dove," a Chinese play, will be presented by the play production class tomorrow afternoon at 2 p. m., in the Frederic Burk auditorium. This will be a typical Chinese play, without settings," explained the director, Mr. Kenneth King.

A great deal of imagination will be required, for all characters dressed in black are supposedly invisible, and hence will be on the stage, although not actually taking part.

Joseph Su, formerly of the theater in China, and now a student here, is chairman of the company. He has obtained many true costumes for the play, which will be free to members of the student body.

Last week, members of the class presented Booth Tarkington's one-act comedy, "The Travellers," which was enthusiastically received by the children of the training school.

Preceding the play, Mr. King gave a short resume of the story of the play, and also explained the reason for the title, "The Turtle Dove."

Senior Bridge Tea Has "Spook" Motif

"Our Halloween bridge tea this afternoon was a great success," affirms Mally Sylvia, chairman of the senior tea committee, "for all our plans have been completed, and the various committees have done their work well."

The tea for the class of '34 will be held in the Activities Room from 4 to 6. The entertainment committee has prepared a varied program. Among those participating will be Jack Murphy, who will give a violin solo. Appropriate prizes will be awarded for the bridge scores.

At the meeting of the senior class last week, the president, Paul Gemignani, congratulated the members for their show of class spirit and thanked them for expressing co-operation in all the affairs pertaining to the class. The main business of the meeting was the completion of plans for the Senior ball, which will be given near the end of the semester.

Honor Club to Meet

The Honor Society of the San Francisco State Teachers College will hold its monthly business meeting this evening in the Activities room at 7:30 p. m. The feature of the program will be a symposium on "The Teacher in Our New Social Order." Dr. Elene Michell, Dr. P. F. Valentine, and Dr. Sherman L. Brown, members of the faculty, will participate.

W. A. A. Play Day Is Scheduled for This Saturday

Miss Mary Close Speaks at Opening of Semi-Annual Athletic Program

Program Contains Hours of Exhibition and Participation

Mrs. Mary S. Close, Girls' Athletic Association advisor of Commerce High School, is to be the guest speaker for the High School Play Day to be held on State's campus this Saturday. Representatives from fifty-five high schools in the bay region, including the parochial schools of San Francisco, will be present. Each school has been invited to send six representatives, including one faculty member.

Guests of honor for the day include the physical education faculty, Mrs. M. Close, Dr. Alexander C. Roberts, and Dr. Edna Barney. A general invitation has been issued to the entire faculty.

Program Completed
Registration will begin at 9:45. From 9:45 to 10:15, folk dancing and a general get-acquainted period will take place. Following this, the active play periods will take place. There will be two periods of participation, separated by an exhibition period. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 in the Frederic Burk auditorium.

Members of the Kappa Delta Tau will entertain during luncheon with folk dances. The tumbling team, under the direction of Dorothy Friedorf, will also entertain during this period. Several skits by the College Theater will be presented.

Numerous Activities
The following events will take place: Volleyball, basketball, baseball, archery and croquet. Exhibitions of hockey and soccer by the State girls will also be presented. The managers of those two sports will take charge of the exhibitions. Group folk dancing will be held to create the air of friendship associated with play day.

Hostesses for the day are: Muriel Barthold, chairman; Barbara Mason, Alice Freitas, Geraldine Jackson, Elsie Lee White, Ann Dunn, Julia Merrill, Helen Jones, Edna Combs, Mary Lyons, Marion Hitchcock, and Lorraine Lindbergh.

P. E. Majors Assist
Betty Stevenson, decoration committee chairman, has planned individual favors for the affair, using autumn as the theme.

Margaret Marek, president of W. A. A., is general chairman for the day. Working under her as committee chairmen are: Lois Lundstedt, program; Muriel Barthold, reception; Doris Nystrom, luncheon; Dorothy Hart, registration; Frances Jones, equipment; Marie Regli has charge of officials, and Alice Freitas, entertainment.

Parent-Faculty Club Plans Fathers' Night

The next regular meeting of the San Francisco State Teachers College Parent-Faculty Club will take place on Wednesday evening, November 1, at 7:30 o'clock in the Frederic Burk auditorium.

After a brief meeting presided over by Mrs. Frank Merrill, president of the group, the rest of the evening will be devoted to the honor of fathers. Dr. Alexander C. Roberts, president of the college; Dean Mary A. Ward, and Dean David Cox will address the group and their friends that evening.

The program for fathers' night is to include selections by a group of woodwind instrumentalists and a group of brass instrumental players. Members of both groups are students of State. Refreshments will be served at the close of the program.

The Parent-Faculty Club sponsored a card party for the benefit of the Student Loan Fund on Friday afternoon, October 20.

Entertainment was furnished by student talent of this college. The selections included a saxophone solo by Helen Jordan and a violin solo by Jack Murphy. An individual prize was given to the holder of the highest score of each table. Refreshments were then served.

Youthful Agitators Ejected by Cioffi

When three small boys attacked student body president Ralph Cioffi at the Noon Dance last week, Cioffi decided it was time for action.

Cioffi was in the middle of a lazy fox-trot when the boys, whom he had reprimanded for annoying the dancers, ran out and pelted him with blows. Calling to the floor manager for assistance, Cioffi left his dancing partner, grabbed a struggling boy under each arm, and marched for the door. After ejecting the urchins, Cioffi brushed off his hands, and returned to the dance. "There is a limit to all things," he said.

State, S. F. U. Tauromachists Plan Debate

Clashing in what has become a traditional rivalry, State's varsity debating team will meet the University of San Francisco on Monday, November 6, on the question of the Uhl supervisor plan, according to the announcement of Kenneth King, debate coach, at Thursday's meeting of Delta Sigma. "This will be the first time that the Gaters have met the Dons on their home ground, and we are out for a victory," declared Lynn Johnson, vice-president of the organization, who presided at the meeting.

The local dialectic artists met U. S. F. last year, Mr. King explained, but were unfamiliar with the Congressional style of debate used by their opponents. With this experience behind them, however, the debaters have gained confidence and ease and will be in a fine position to match wits with the San Francisco Dons.

Congressional Style Used
The announcement of the approaching controversy is arousing considerable interest, and competition has been keen for places on the squad, judging from the turnout. The Congressional style, allowing for interruption of the speakers, will be used, and State will be arrayed on the negative side of the question. The Staters will be represented by Lisa Magnus, Jack Werchick, and Dick Davis. The debate will be held at University of San Francisco at 8 o'clock in the evening.

The feature of the Delta Sigma meeting was an extemporaneous speaking contest on the subject of "The Hitler regime, its program and its future." The prize for the best impromptu exposition of this theme went to Robert Van Houte, with Jack Werchick and Lynn Johnson runners-up. Among the less experienced speakers, prizes were awarded to Norman Forbyn and Lillian Everson.

Werchick Presents Cake to Magnus
Following the discussion, Jack Werchick, on behalf of Delta Sigma, presented Elsa Magnus, secretary of the organization, with a cake in honor of her birthday. In presenting the gift, Werchick spoke warmly of her fine work both in debating and in the management of the organization's affairs, and expressed the appreciation and felicitations of the club.

Delta Sigma also welcomed two visitors who took part in the open forum. Miss Jessie Casebolt and Don Pidgeon. The evening wound up with impromptu entertainment by Florence Barkans who played the piano, and Helen Frank with an interpretive dance, and with the serving of the birthday cake and tea to all present.

Wm. Ewing, Oakland School Supt., Visitor at College

William Ewing, Assistant Superintendent of the Oakland Schools, spoke to Dr. P. F. Valentine's educational psychology class at 3 p. m. Monday, on the subject of "The Place of the Teacher in the Nation."

Mr. Ewing stated: "Unemployment of California teachers has been on the increase since 1930, and reduction in the employment of teachers was caused by two outstanding reasons. First, due to the decrease in school budgets, the classes have been increased in size; secondly, the number of classes per teacher has been increased."

The visitor stated that the real test of a good teacher was in having to teach larger classes. "The character of the teacher depends upon the teacher having the interests of the school at heart. The teacher should be a part of the school all the time," said Mr. Ewing. He used Colorado State Teachers College as an example. The four main points of this standard he named as: Willingness to co-operate, interest in common welfare, teaching skill, and pleasing personality.

Mr. Ewing also discussed the health of a teacher, and the length and quality of teaching experience. He encouraged teachers and graduates by telling that they can now be hired into Oakland, San Francisco, or Berkeley schools without two years' experience.

"This class has the advantage over the old teachers, due to the fact that the old teachers had their training too long ago, and no improvement in training and opportunities of the teaching profession now is very marked," he concluded.

"Suppressed Desires" Presented Tomorrow

"Suppressed Desires," the second production of the Experimental Theater, which operates under the auspices of College Theater, will be presented tomorrow at noon in 201. This one-act comedy differs considerably from the fantastic "Queen's English," presented a few weeks ago.

Lillian Collins, director of this play by Susan Glaspell, has announced the cast to be the following: Henrietta Brewster, Patricia Kelley, Stephen Brewster, Louis Ray, Mabel Betty Johnston. Miss Collins is being assisted in the production by Dick Marsh, president of College Theater.

Formal Tea for Presentation of New Club Pledges

Phi Lambda Chi Formal Open to State Student Body; Members of Group to Pour

Decorations in Theme of Autumn; House Mother Hostess

Members of Phi Lambda Chi will present their pledges for this semester at a formal tea on Sunday, October 29, at the Phi Lambda Chi clubhouse at 101 Buena Vista avenue.

Roberta Connor, president of Phi Lambda Chi, announces that this affair is to be open to the college. Sixteen pledges will be formally presented on this day.

Sponsors to Be Present
The sponsors of the club who will be present at the tea are: Miss Clara Crompton, Miss Florence Vance, Miss Louise Alcott, Miss Cecilia Anderson, Mrs. Anna V. Dorris, Miss Effie B. McFadden, and Miss Hilda Holmes. Representatives from the following groups will attend: Nel Owens Club, sponsors of Phi Lambda, Alumnae, and club members.

The entertainment for the afternoon, under the direction of Helen Gray, will be vocal selections by Bob Lawson, accompanied by Louise Lee Rice, and violin selections by Jack Murphy, accompanied by Stella Boehm.

Hostesses for Day
The acting hostesses for the day will be the Phi Lambda Chi house girls, including Louise Lee Rice, Miriam Carden, Kathleen Marlahan, Doris Hutton, Emma Hiede, Jean Caldwell, Dot Newton, Dorothy Harshner, Helen Gray, Johannah Sullivan, and Elsie Lee White, and club members, including: Beth Arthur, Merida Cummins, Frances Merrill, Catherine Small, Betty McDonald, Marie Seaman, Eva Symon, and Roberta Connor. The house is to be decorated in the theme of autumn, using autumn flowers and leaves. Miss Edith Vernon, house mother, is taking general charge of the affair.

Committees in Charge
The separate committees in charge of the tea are: Refreshments, Doris Hutton, chairman; Emma Heide, Helen Orr, and Georgina Skinner; publicity, Joannas Sullivan, chairman; Kathryn Cummings, Marjorie Eakin, Grace Strominger, Lois Shafsky, Mabel Roberts, and Mae Levin; decorations, Elsie Lee White, chairman; Mabel Morris and Dorothy Marie Hart; invitations, Dorothy Newton, chairman; Wilma Goss, and Marjory Angell.

The Phi Lambda Chi Pajamarino, under the direction of Dot Hart, will take place the following Friday night, November 3.

Moving Picture to Draw French Club

Mlle. Juliette Passeron, professor of the Alliance Francaise and secretary of the Bibliotheque Francaise, was the guest of honor at the French Club dinner Friday evening.

French songs and conversation held sway throughout the program. After the dinner many of the members went to see the French talking picture, "La Cautriere de Lunville," at the Kamokini Theater. The next meeting of the French Club will be held today at noon in Room 209, instead of at the usual Friday date. A motion picture entitled "Strasbourg" will be shown at this meeting, through the courtesy of Mr. M. Y. de Bellefont, French consul in San Francisco. All students who are interested in foreign trade are invited to see this film.

A complete program of activities for the French Club is announced for the rest of the year by Maurice Lemmel, president. These events will include a picnic at Angel Island, a visit to the Bibliotheque Francaise, and a visit on board a ship. "Members of the club," says Lemmel, "are requested to attend these excursions and bring their friends with them."

Class Bails Out As Plumbing Fails

Rubber boots were at a premium in the chemistry laboratory last Thursday when two sinks suddenly plugged up and the overflow spilled on the floor. The water streamed down the aisles between the desks before the accident was noticed. A hurried call was sent to the school plumber. Meanwhile, students resorted to stools to keep their feet dry. Some of the men tried to syphon the excess liquid out of the window through rubber tubes. One student grabbed a crock and began to bail the water out into the yard. Then the plumber arrived.

Peninsula Club Site of Junior Dance Nov. 4

Committee Takes Theme of 'Rhapsody in Blue'—Wright's Music

"Rhapsody in Blue" is the theme chosen by the Junior Prom committee for the big event which the juniors are looking forward to. The prom will be held Saturday evening, November 4, at the California Golf and Country Club. Jack Wright's well known Guernwood Orchestra will be one of the high lights of the affair. Only one hundred and fifty bids are to be issued; they may be purchased for $1.50 each. It is to be a semi-formal affair.

The committee will carry out the theme idea in posters, programs, entertainment and decorations. "The programs," states Marie Porteous, chairman of bids and program, "besides serving their usual purpose, will have a novelty in store for those who attend. They have a double purpose."

California Golf Club Site
The juniors chose the California Golf and Country Club because of its spacious and luxurious dancing floor space. The club is set a mile off the main highway, about a half-hour's drive from the city.

"And the dance, a fitting climax to this 'night of nights,' is something to look forward to, for it will include a marvelous floor, a melodious orchestra, blue lights to harmonize with the 'Rhapsody in Blue' idea, and a merry crowd," said Margie Burke, chairman of the dance.

Andrew Miller Sponsors
Mr. Andrew Miller, secretary of the California Bankers' Association, will sponsor the dance. He has just returned from the National Bankers' Association convention in Chicago. Mr. Miller is also a prominent member of the Del Monte Country Club and Lakeside Golf Club.

It was made known by James Kilkenny, president of the low juniors, that the past successes of the class have spurred the committee on to heights never before attempted. The Frosh Hop was the first football dance ever given at State.

"The sophomore dance at Lakeside Country Club was the biggest social success ever given at State," states Kilkenny.

International Club Has First Annual Broadcast

Under the direction of Wesley Johnson, president, the International Relations Club presents its first semi-annual Big Broadcast on Friday, between 12 and 1 p. m., in the women's gymnasium.

"The Big Broadcast promises to offer the greatest array of talent ever to appear on a single program at State," according to Johnson, who formerly was connected with the stage.

"The student body of State will be given an opportunity to enjoy $10 worth of entertainment for 10 cents," declared Johnson. Some of the high-lights of the program are: Lee & Davis, the "Boys with the Insane Feet," who will demonstrate how tap dancing should be done; Mildred Roof and Juanita Van Slyke will play a specially arranged piano duet. Neva Peoples, vivacious and famous blues singer of the recent stage hit, "Change Your Luck," will sing one of the latest hits. Emil Del Carlo, accordionist, promises to fill the gym with rhythm.

"Duke" Peoples will bring his band from the Hollywood Jangles. Rosa-Abaya will sing native songs of the Philippines in his native dialect. Florence Berkan and Ray Allee will give a humorous skit. Lynn Johnson of Johnson & Johnson has a surprise in store. Bob Wall's Cavaliers have prepared several numbers.

"Our own Marion Miyagi, a native of Hawaii, will interpret some of her native dances," concludes Johnson. "Direct from Harlem come a chorus of girls whose dancing has received favorable mention from Bill 'Bojangles' Robinson."

Judging from the sale of tickets, the attendance of the Big Broadcast will surpass all previous campus entertainments, according to Elizabeth Kennedy, chairman of the ticket sale.

The fund raised through the presentation of the program will be used to send student delegates to the international round table conferences at Stanford University and Santa Cruz.

Girls to Give Play

"Tea," the playlet depicting a day in a girl's camp, written by Alma Upson and Violet Simon, student teachers, will be presented by the Camp Fire group at Frederic Burk. The play will be given tomorrow in the Frederic Burk auditorium from 3:15 to 4 o'clock. The performance is to raise funds for the national dues of the group, and admission will be 10 cents. Miss Jessie Casebolt, assistant professor of English, and Alma Upson, leader of the group, are the directors.

Women Ask Student Aid For Drive

Students' Council of the Nat'l Women's Party to Fight for Equal Rights to All

Women's Party Report to U. S. President Proves Inequality

Representatives of twelve leading Eastern colleges were present at the annual fall meeting of the Students' Council of the National Women's Party held recently in Washington, D. C. The keynote of the discussion was the part of the student in furthering the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment.

The present work of the National Women's Party is a direct outgrowth of the early suffrage movement. Having secured for women political equality, the organization has continued to work for the abolition of legal and economic handicaps.

Committee Speaks
In a statement made to President Roosevelt, a deputation from the National Women's Party said: "Do you know that there is not a single state in the Union today where all laws apply equally to men and women; that about one-half of the states deny to married women the power over their property which is freely given to the married man as regards their property? That some of the states give the earnings of married women to their husbands; that some of the states still bar women from public offices and positions; and that in twenty-seven states women are barred from service as jurors?"

Amendment Outlined
At another meeting, the part of the student in supporting the Equal Rights Amendment was outlined. Betty McGing, acting president and a student of Goucher College, in opening the discussion, said: "Just as the suffrage Amendment was worked for its passage until women were enfranchized, so we of this generation will work through our Student Councils for the Equal Rights Amendment until through its passage men and women have equal rights legally and economically."

Student Views
The students feel that indifference within their colleges to the feminist movement was due to a lack of knowledge of its history and purpose. A national board of students was formed to promote the organization of these individual councils, and the officers were elected for the coming year. Upon request from interested groups, the board will forward a bibliography on the woman movement compiled by Dr. Wilhelmina Williams of Goucher College. Those interested are asked to write to Betty McGing, Goucher College, Baltimore, Md.

W. A. A. PLAY DAY NEXT SATURDAY

By GEORGE CLARK

Several weeks ago this column was severely reprimanded for chucking scallions at two aspiring young gridders, so this week we are going to toss some orchids to the boys and see how they land. We suggest that the boys use them as corsages at the football rally, or put them in their hope chest, it really makes no difference to us, so here goes a sweet smelling, purple orchid to each of the following:

George "C. L." Donnell, flashy half and safety man, for his punting and open field running. In addition to an orchid we nominate "George Boy" for No. 1 on State's list of football immortals, if such a thing exists. Donnell has an impressive three-year varsity record.

"In and Out" Jones, the snappy tackle from Cal. Jonesey let his opponents know that there was a position called tackle. The Cal. kid was also an outstanding passer and seldom failed to hit his mark.

Harry "Cowboy" Ridge, powerful running guard, who learned football from broncos. When "Cowboy" hit them they stayed hit.

"Hands" Nathan, the bumblebee batter, from down Bakersfield way. Nate carried the brunt of the Gater attack. We are also going to give him some of the valley with his orchid for that look on his face when that old Chico meantie tackled him out of bounds.

Ray "Curly" Kaufman, fullback, for throwing away his helmet in the Chico go.

"King Kong" Heckman, the Fresno flash, for that 60-yard run against the Wildcats, that was called back. Arch at least proved it could be done.

Al "Harpo" Furst, varsity guard, 160 pounds of dynamite, for blocking that Santa Rosa punt in the end zones.

"Thunder Mountain" Drysdale, mountainous tackle, for lending his impressive bulk to the Gater line.

"Brittle Bones" Gschwend, hard hitting full, for tearing the highly touted Chico line apart.

Tom "College Hall" Bragg, quarter, for calling signals loud enough for the rooters to hear.

Lanky Ralph Simon, veteran end, and outstanding linesman of the Gater varsity. Ralph's hungry hands accounted for many of the Gater's gains; his ability at snagging passes was unequalled.

Walt Nolan, speedy flankman, for the innumerable times he beat the punt down to the opposing safety. Walt wound up his football career Saturday against the Chico Wildcats.

"Faces" Rudd, varsity pivot man, for his errorless work at center. Ruddy could also scare the toughest of his opponents by putting on that well-known fighting face.

Basketball Practice to Start Soon

Coch Farmer Schedules Hard Season—Vets Look Good

Coch Dan Farmer, head basketball mentor, will sound the first call for varsity practice, November 1, and seventeen days later will send his charges forth to do battle with the powerful Golden Gate Junior College quintet. The Junior College hoopers have been practicing for over a month and will be a real team to test the mettle of the Gaters.

The State varsity looks like it will be the strongest team to ever don the purple and gold. With the whole of the thirty-two varsity players returning, bolstered by freshmen and transfers, it looks like it will be rounded into a sure winner. Coach Farmer is not looking for a gray train for the boys to hang on to, but on the contrary has compiled the most ambitious schedule ever attempted by any one from State.

Games have been scheduled with Sacramento, Santa Rosa and Golden Gate Jaycees, Cal. Aggies, St. Mary's, Chico, College of the Pacific, and San Jose. With this impressive list of opponents, Coach Farmer has really brought the Gaters into the big time.

No man, regardless of size, ability, or experience, will be barred from playing ball for the Gaters on one of the teams. Coach Farmer uses the Rambler system with the 145s being the Junior varsity, the third team, the Flying A's, are for men who lack the experience or ability to compete with the varsity men. All teams have independent schedules, the 145s playing the preliminary to the varsity, and the Flying A's tangling with the bay region high schools.

Rambler System Used

Coch Farmer with his tough schedule promises that no man is ever going to be sure of his position in the starting line-up. Cagers from the Jaycee are going to be promoted to the varsity any time they are able to show they have the stuff. Varsity men who fail to show the old fire will be demoted to the 45s, and stay there till they definitely prove their worth to the varsity. Strict training rules are to be rigidly enforced the entire season. Violations of these rules will bring immediate dismissal from the squad.

"Tish" Thomas and Gene Dusmenil, varsity managers, and their two bucket boys, George Mirande and Bob Links, for standing around the field and commenting on the Gaters in action. Once in a while one of the boys would pack a bucket to the thirsty players.

Humboldt Play Day Visited by Mareck, W. A. A. President

Intra-mural Schedule for Women's Contests Completed

Miss Margaret Mareck, president of W. A. A., visited the annual High School Play Day at the Humboldt State Teachers College at Arcata last Saturday. The other honor guests for the day included the W. A. A. presidents from Mills and San Jose State. Seven nearby high schools participated and an NRA theme, with emphasis placed upon novel recreational activities was carried out. On Saturday noon a luncheon, including a song contest, was followed by an auditorium program of stunts. Saturday evening the group attended a house party at Big Lagoon, and the affair ended with a breakfast given Sunday morning in the garden of a Humboldt faculty member.

Primary Play Day

Dorothy Brett has been selected by the other student teachers to act as chairman of the play day for the primary grades which is to be held on Thursday, October 26. Miss Cecilia Anderson, Mrs. Jessie Billingsley, and Miss Doris Holtz are to be supervisors for the program, but the plans and arrangements are to be worked out by the student teachers.

The purpose of this play day is to provide the student teachers with experience in planning for and officiating at a play day program.

W. A. A. Swimming

Miss Edna Combs, manager of W. A. A. swimming, announces that passes selling at 21 cents each are obtainable from her for W. A. A. swimming, which takes place in the Women's City Club on Mondays from 4 to 6:30.

The girls who signed up for this sport will not get credit for attendance unless they attend several times during the next two months.

Intra-Mural Games

Each term intra-mural games are held between classes enrolled in the prevailing sports of that particular term. Practices for the games are held in class during the first part of the term, the intra-mural games starting the last of the semester. The officials for the contests are the physical education majors and minors who are practice-teaching. Dorothy Hart, manager of the intra-mural games, has worked out the schedule for the hockey and soccer teams. The games are set for Tuesdays and Thursdays at 12:15 on the upper field.

The schedule and captains for the hockey teams are: November 2—Yellow Jackets (Maria Grassi) vs. Demons (Wilma Goss). November 7—Divot Diggers (Doris Nystrom) vs. Cougars (Frances Jones). November 9—Winners play for championship.

The soccer schedule and captains are: November 2, 2 o'clock Tuesday and Thursday class—Royal (Marion Hicks) vs. Diritaters (to be played in class); Sock-it-to-you (Lili Lullich) vs. winner of Royal vs. Diritaters (to be played in class). November 14—Pettunias (Luis Lundstedt) vs. winner in 2 o'clock class. November 16—Galloping Geese (Alice Frierias) vs. loser in 2 o'clock class.

Gobs Lead in Intra-Mural Tournaments

Dan Farmer Looks for New Material in Class Meet

With the Inter-Class Basketball Tournament entering the second week, the "Babies" are the outstanding team, with two wins to their credit. Three double-headers were played last week, two games Monday, two Wednesday, and two Thursday. The formidable "Bone Crushers" won the opening game by default from the P. E. 80A team last Monday and the "Left Handers" were the winners of the second contest, taking the "Waterdogs" 17 to 9.

New Material Found

In their initial game, "Goodwin's Gobs" were awarded a win last Wednesday when the "Squunks" failed to appear. The "Squunks" have defaulted two games so far. "The Gobs" list many impressive names well-known in State athletic circles and promises to be one of the outstanding teams. The P. E. 80A team was overwhelmed by the "Babies" 20 to 6 in the second game. This was the second consecutive victory for the "Babies" and set them in first place with more wins than any other team. The tournament has brought forward many potential varsity men and Coach Dan Farmer, who organized it, has high hopes for some of the members of the "Babies" team.

"Powell's Ramblers," of baseball fame, who have been reorganized into a basketball team, won from the "Left Handers" 20 to 3 last Thursday. Bob Petersen and Joseph Lee started for the "Ramblers" with spectacular long shots. The "Rear Rank" forfeited to the "Waterdogs" in the second scheduled game.

Tourney Successful

Monday, October 23, marked the beginning of the second week of the tournament, with the game between the powerful "Allez Oops" and the P. E. 80A team. The 80A's were favorites for a large part of the contest, but the "Allez Oops" came through toward the end to win 16 to 11. George Donnell and George Moscone were largely responsible for the winning score turned in by the "Allez Oops."

The "Bone Crushers" will play the "Waterdogs" today in the first game. In the second, "Powell's Ramblers" will play the "Rear Rank." The schedule for the rest of the week will be: Thursday, "Goodwin's Gobs" versus the "Babies," and the "Squunks" versus the "Allez Oops"; Friday, the "Left Handers" versus the "Rear Rank," and "Powell's Ramblers" versus the "Bone Crushers."

Admission Charged

Another departure in the nature of this Bull Session is the charging of admission. This has been found necessary this year because of the great expenses incurred in obtaining the above mentioned famous cast of players. Then, too, the costuming and scenery are to be elaborate and tremendously costly. There will be an advance sale of tickets, but they may also be purchased at the door. No limit is to be made as to the number of tickets sold to each male member of this student body. Come bring your friends. Only 10 cents a head.

Roy Nicholayson is in charge of the cats. Under him are Walter Drysdale and Otto Bole. They are hard workers, and to prove their industry, they have reported that the buns for the hot dogs were purchased over three weeks ago. "And the pies," says chairman Nicholayson, "are fine. We have most of those used last spring. Some were slightly damaged, but have been vulcanized." There's a real treat for you, fellows!

Surprise Acts Featured

Harmon Jette, the master of ceremonies for the evening added: "Besides the regular scheduled events on the program there will be several surprise features such as are seen only in high-class vaudeville houses like the Capitol, etc."

The entire program is to be put on by members of the Block "S" Society, with the able assistance of Allen Howard, Louis Ray, and Harmon Jette. All male members of the student body are invited to come and bring all of the male friends they think would be interested.

Block 'S' Society Promises Success For Bull Session

Program Includes Many Outstanding Features —Rudd Chairman

"Fifteen Years of a Drunkard's Life," or "Around the World With Grandma," is the title of the feature skit on the evening's performance at the Block "S" Bull Session, Friday night, November 3.

This play was the hit of the 1882 opera season. The plot is based on the sad, sad tale of a poor but honest bum. He drifts along until finally as a last resort he takes up the school teaching business as a profession. Then he does go down. But come and see the play!

Gala Program Promised

No expense is being spared, or even considered, to make this evening of entertainment a huge success. All of the theatrical talent embraced in the hood, sweeping extent of this glorious campus is being enlisted to ensure a worth-while production. The galaxy of stars includes Louis Ray, Allan Howard, Dick Curtis, Ray Allee, Tom Bragg, Ralph Simon, Eddie Sadallah, Ralph Nathan, Dick Marsh, Jack Murphy, and the entire Block "S" Society.

Jack Rosen and his Block "S" Noon Day Orchestra will furnish syncopated and rhythmic music to step up the show and add color to the acts. This is a new feature as there never has before an orchestra at a Bull Session before.

The program is completed and lines up as follows:

1. School Songs...Community Singing
2. Impersonations...Jas. Stinchcomb
3. Football Skit...Murphy, Allee, Jones, Eade, and Goldman
4. Marx Bros....Howard & Marsh
5. Boxing....P. E. Class
6. "Meeting Up"...Ray & Co.
7. "Fifteen Years in a Drunkard's Life" or "Around the World With Grandma."

Powerful Chico Team Defeats Gater Eleven By Two Touchdowns

Donnell Finishes Football Career at State With Good Exhibition of Punting—Chico Scores in Final Minutes

By GEORGE MIRANDE

In their last game of the season, the San Francisco State gridders met and were defeated by the powerful Chico State eleven, 14 to 0, Saturday at Ewing Field.

Both of Chico's touchdowns were scored in the final minutes of play in each half, and both were the climax of 70-yard drives. Clayton Roy, quarterback, chalked up the Wildcats' first score when he carried the pigskin over the goal line in the last minute of the second quarter, after a State penalty of five yards had placed the ball on the 3-yard marker. Len Smith, tackle, converted with a perfect place kick.

Chico again scored late in the last period. Ernie Lambrecht, Wildcat fullback, ran through the entire State secondary on a 45-yard dash to tally. Smith's try for the extra point was again perfect.

Gaters Strong in First Half

The Gaters entered the game determined to avenge the 26 to 0 defeat handed to them by Chico last year, and played heads-up football to keep the Wildcats on the defensive for the first 25 minutes of the first half. It was not until the last few minutes of the second quarter that the Wildcats started going places. Outside of the two sustained drives by Chico, the game was a nip-and-tuck affair, with excellent punting by both George Donnell, Gater halfback, and Chesley Rushton, Wildcat end, featuring.

Simon Drops Ball Over Goal Line

The Gaters were sadly lacking in their aerial attack. Out of the 12 forward passes attempted only one was completed. Had the Gaters connected with a few of these tosses, the score might have been altogether different. As it was, late in the third quarter, after State had advanced the ball 30 yards to the Chico 35-yard line, Owen Jones dropped back to pass; it was a perfect toss over the goal line to Ralph Simon, who fumbled the pigskin, thus smothering State's greatest threat to score.

The Gater fans were given a thrill early in the fourth period when little Archie Heckman, flashy Gater halfback, intercepted a Chico pass on the 50-yard line and raced down the sidelines toward the goal only to be called back as he had caught the ball out of bounds.

Donnell Punts 70 Yards

Playing in his last college game, George Donnell, Gater halfback, ended his career with an exhibition of punting which was worthy of note. All through the entire game he kept the Wildcats in danger with his "coffin corner" kicks which were grounded on the Wildcat 8, 7, and 10-yard line at different times. His longest kick of the day was good for 70 yards. Extra credit is given Donnell, because he was able to get it off from behind his own goal line early in the first period, to pull the Gater eleven out of a tight spot.

Chesley Rushton, Wildcat end, proved a menace to the Gaters during the entire sixty minutes of the game. Although his punting did not surpass that of Donnell's, it was sufficient to keep the Gaters worried. Donnell booted the pigskin seven times for an average length of 47 yards per punt, while Rushton booted eight times for an average length of 34 yards.

Lambrecht Outstanding Player

Starting at fullback for the Wildcats in place of Delgrado, Ernie Lambrecht proved to be one of the star performers of the day. His plunging and open field running was the high spots of the game. His gallop of 45 yards to a touchdown in the fourth quarter was the longest gain of the day. In that same fourth quarter he broke through the Gater squad for a gain of 18 yards and only one man between him and the goal line; however, he was downed.

Henry, 9.9 dash man, and Chico's star halfback, who ran wild against the Gaters last year, ended the contest in the second half. He was forced to leave the game before he had a chance to show his speed, due to a slight knee injury.

Gaters Lack Reserve Strength

Lack of substitutions began to tell on the fighting Gaters, who had put up a great fight. In the last few minutes of play the Wildcats started a drive which had all the earmarks of another score. After receiving Donnell's punt on their own 42-yard line, the Wildcat gridders advanced the ball on three plays to the Gater 33-yard line, where their drive was cut short by the sound of the gun ending the game.

The Exotic... at Home

San Francisco offers to the ambitious student unusual opportunities for self-culture. World travellers visiting here declare that this city by the Golden Gate is one of the few cities in the United States that has an atmosphere of sophistication and refinement. San Francisco is large enough to have a character; but not so great as to have lost its soul.

Art exhibitions, musical concerts, and literary recitations are common. San Francisco is a cosmopolitan city. It has within it people from every part of the world. It has, to some extent, congregated these people in foreign colonies, each with its own quaint customs—each a mine of exotics for the curious student.

Chinatown, with its Oriental architecture, its tea houses, and its large Confucian temple, is, of course, world-famous. But the Japanese district also offers sights that are strange. There is the Buddhist temple on Washington street. There is the ju-jitsu club on Sutter street, and the fencing club, where saber duelling is practiced after the manner of the old Samurai, on Post street. And there are the many restaurants where Japanese dishes are served, and where may be sampled, if one has a way with waiters, the famous beverage, saki.

The Russian district, out on Potrero hill, is fascinating. The ceremonies of the Russian Orthodox church should be seen by every student hunting the beautiful and the exotic. And down on Sutter street one may find Russian restaurants and eat Russian foods, while Cossack entertainers sing and play upon their balalaikas, and graceful dancers whirl around the tables.

Then there is the Italian colony at North Beach, and the Spanish colony in the district around Broadway and Mason. There are the Greek coffee shops on Third street, and the Armenian restaurants on Turk street. There are many other unusual places where the student may add to his knowledge and find pleasure.

The students of San Francisco State Teachers College are fortunate in the location of their college. If they go away, after four years' residence in San Francisco, without having added to their culture and to their knowledge of foreign peoples and their ways, surely it will not be because they have not had opportunities.

Language and Ambiguity

As a language grows old, too many of its words are robbed of distinctiveness by having too many meanings. The sense is not always apparent from the context. Continually one must reject words, not because they do not convey what one means, but because they do not convey it alone.

What does the educated individual mean when he uses words like spiritual and soul? What can these words convey to persons without religion? Are there any words without pious connotations that carry meaning which might be misunderstood if the traditional terms were used?

The soul may be what? Vaguely, the life force within one? In a general sense perhaps. The sentiments of gentleness, tenderness, pity, altruism; these are attributes of the temperament or of the personality. Nobility, humanity, philanthropy; these are isolated from any necessary connection with warranted conceptions of the soul. The totality of emotional capacity, sensitiveness, the highest human sensibilities; these are separate abstractions. Can we mean anything distinctive by soul?

Spiritual is legitimately used as antithetic to material, of course. Otherwise, has it any non-religious meaning? We are not warranted in using it to convey the sense of intellectuality or of moral purity; there are appropriate terms with no confusing traditional connotations.

Both words are perhaps in some measure superfluous, except in their general senses and as synonyms. Used even thus they are not clear. In the modern world, they are basically ambiguous.

The King's English

Chaucer glorified English prose in the fifteenth century to such an extent that critics "ga-ga-ed" over him, and set down in the indelible script of tradition the bromide fact that he was, is, and shall forever more be, the one and only, the great and immortal Chaucer—the father of modern English.

It takes a student, unacquainted with the noted bard's petite manner of speech, a full hour to translate, into English that can be understood in the light of present-day achievements, the contents of a page of this highly touted master.

Yet he is spoken of as the father of modern English, and we, you and I, are passed by without a thought—it takes us but an hour to translate one of his pages; how long would it have taken him, and will it take the graybeards of the future, to transcribe a page of our modern language?

Imagine, five hundred years from today. A weary student sits and wracks his head, puzzles over the weird hieroglyphics of what is known as twentieth century slang. Think of their trying, for instance, to translate the following elementary paragraph:

"I lamped the mug, pinch hittin' fer the Gold Dust twins, duckin' the star, an' tryin' to do a fadeout with the jitter sneeze. But the dice was loaded, and his moll Casanovaed him; she's skatin' around with a load of cracked ice, an' he's gettin' a shine on his pants dustin' off the cooler. Nuts to you!"

Moral: For the prophet is without honor in his own home.

LIFTING THE LID

ON NINE O'CLOCK BOOKS

Dear Lid-Lifter:

If a student is one, two, or three minutes late in returning an over-night book, it doesn't seem fair to charge him 25 cents the first hour for keeping the book out. After all he is not depriving another of the book. Occasionally a student is delayed a few minutes either going up and down stairs or crossing to Anderson Hall to a locker.

A better plan would be to charge 5 cents during the first hour and 25 cents at the end of the hour, when the book is more likely to be in demand.

D. E. W., Box 531.

TAKE WITH A PINCH OF SALT

Dear Lid-Lifter:

Wanted, Dead or Alive, the student who puts salt into sugar containers. Yours truly, being a person who likes a little tea with her sugar, went to the cafeteria for a sip of said liquid refreshment. The tea was forthcoming, but the sugar was liberally mixed with NaCl. Result: One ruined disposition.

J. H., Box —

WANTED: LESS FORMALITY

Dear Lid-Lifter:

Have you ever been to the Noon Day Dances? If you have, you probably noticed that the men students congregate on one side of the gym and the women students on the other.

Why must the men be so formal? Do they have to have an introduction before they ask a girl to dance? It seems that way. Why not introduce a host or hostess system in which either the host or the hostess will do the introducing for the asking.

H. L., Box 1430

SECOND CHILDHOOD

Dear Lid-Lifter:

Why can't college students act like college students and not like primary school children? The other day near Room 216 some students, prospective teachers, had a lunch fighting contest, which resulted in having one of the lunches sprawled all over the hall. We know that we have not a very beautiful building, but after all there is no necessity for making it vulgar looking by having crushed and mangled fruits and sandwiches lying about the halls.

WHERE, OH, WHERE?

Dear Lid-Lifter:

Why can't the faculty members keep their office hours? It is almost impossible for one to get his minor application signed, or to consult his advisor on any other matter, as the advisors are never in their offices.

It's quite disgusting to have to cut class in order to see one of them, and then to sit patiently waiting, only to have him fail to appear.

Can't advisors spend at least a few minutes of the time designated as their office hours where they rightfully belong?

HOW ABOUT SOME HOOKS?

Dear Lid-Lifter:

"Hang it right over there," I was told. "Impossible, as there are no hooks," says I, referring to the condition existing in the men's wash room in College Hall. Coats or other forms of wearing apparel must either be "hung" on the floor or kept on while washing.

Why can't some hooks be placed around the walls? This would make it possible for the coat to be removed and kept in shape during the process of making one's self presentable. Yours for hooks, H. A. T., Box 403

LET'S CLEAR THE STAIRWAYS

Dear Editor:

After three weeks of adjusting to classes and new instructors, faces, and what not, there is yet one more orientation to make. That is trying to become accustomed to rudely pushing and shoving one's way up and down stairs. Why do people insist on holding up traffic on the stairways any more than on a street?

Ask any one of the men or women using the stairs as a main thoroughfare. He'll tell you there is just room for a single file going one way. The other nine-tenths is occupied by those gossip-mongers who seem to be oblivious of everyone else. Can't they arrange a meeting place outside or in the halls? Any place, so the rest of us can go places and get there on time.

Have we any hall monitors or those doing police duty? Sounds like a little kid's school when we need such. But we have to do something about it, for we must keep people moving up and down those stairs.

Bessie-calf

There was in the atmosphere an undercurrent of excitement and a glow of pleasurable anticipation. Daily now the footsteps of Rose, our Jersey cow, were becoming slower, her bodily movements more ungainly. Her trips aside were less frequent.

By these signs we children knew that our hopes were soon to be rewarded. Papa had promised that the next calf should be ours to rear and to dispose of.

One frosty night we woke to hear Papa blundering about the kitchen in search of his lantern and the kit of first aid supplies for livestock. He tramped out the back door and we drifted off to sleep again.

Before good daylight we sneaked out of the house, scarcely taking time to dress properly, and raced for the cow-shed. There on a bed of hay was our little calf having her first bath. Rose was licking every inch of her little brown body, as if loathe to let one microbe escape.

From a pan of slimy water dipped out of the horse trough, we sprinkled our pet and christened her Bessie. After that first day she was called "Bessie-calf."

After school we would rush home to groom her and teach her new tricks. When we went in for supper Bessie would follow us to the door and wait there until Rose called her to her own dinner. All evening we would romp and play together, until both Bessie's mother and ours deemed it time for all young things to be abed.

We planned a marvelous career for Bessie-calf. She was to win blue ribbons at every county fair. She was to be of all milch cows the finest. She was to become the mother of generations of pure-breds. Not for her the lot of common cattle. No, our Bess was to be a queen in her own right.

And then on a night chillier than that of her birth, Bessie-calf wandered away from her mother's side. We found her the next morning with her neck crushed between two spokes of an old wagon wheel. Her baby face was distorted by an agonized expression. We released our pet as tenderly as though that lifeless body were a vital, sensitive thing.

A few hours later Bessie-calf was lifted onto the back of a wagon and carried away for burial. We stood in the road, three stolid little mourners, and watched her out of sight, and wondered if her soul had gone on to an animal heaven.

Unrest

A restless people
This present generation
Appearing to be
Blase—disinterested—relaxed
Yet epidemically-sealed;
As a pearl within an oyster—
Their true feelings—shielded,
Guide their actions.
A sorry group!
For their milling about
Speaks not of
Progressing, but of retrograding;
Restlessness—brooding discontent,
Discontent seeking diversion
Leads but to wantonness and shame
What a heritage!

—Vida Byerrum.

A Thought

This much, O Earth, could I but know—
What thoughts you'll have as on my breast
You lie?
Will they be thoughts of pity for the mortal clay below,
Or thoughts of gladness that from your sod
Up springs
The grass and flowers that custom says
Must cover such as I?
This much, O Earth, could I but know.

—Violet G. Maguire.

The Laborer

He toils—and toils—that weary man. A spadeful of dirt thrown here, flung there. A back bent low, an arm seeming to break under the strain. The sun beats hot on an aching brow. Tired, downhearted. Futile fruitless labor pressing him down—and down.

Nothing tomorrow to brighten the day. Nothing to cheer the heart, to heighten the spirit or lighten the load. Life is a burden, an oppressive care. Hopelessness reigns. No hope for glory, no possibility of fame, or anticipation of happiness. No expectation of joy. No purpose in life. Nothing. And yet he toils—and toils—that weary man.

—Ann Rasmussen.

The Once Over

By JAMES W. STINCHCOMB

THE side show is always with us. In sixteen years, at least, San Francisco has had with little recess, one after another coming to town in this form or that.

It seems simply to be a means of exploiting human beings, especially those who are habitually inquisitive, curious. The ballyhoo and the advertising speak not the truth. They are craftily used but for one purpose—to get the money. The spectator gets the sting of the hook in his purse, and that is all. There is nothing new under the roof of a side show.

THERE is a pervading influence about such a show. It is an atmosphere at once bizarre and brassy, garish and gaudy. The side show of the circus, of the medicine man, of the astrologer, and the detached side show—all have that atmosphere.

A detached side show is on the main street now. If you fall before the first siren, novelty, you pay, enter, and step before a beautiful girl who has the power to charm the dreaded constricting reptiles. The lady, not exactly beautiful but with eyes penciled to a slant, is dressed in the harem brassiere and skirt so popular at the 1915 Fair. She holds three sleepy-looking thick snakes aloft, and you are ready for the horse prince.

FROM some disease or other his legs have remained as small as an infant's. The mentalists are next. One passes through the audience and helps the other through code conversation to tell you the name of your watch. Warren G. Harding was the leading Republican when I first witnessed this display.

There is surely a sword swallower. He looks a bit pale beside the boy who recently ate an open pocket knife successfully. The human-bellows man who lies down before you while 45 pounds of air are pumped into his obviously inflated stomach is really not a wonder. Most people are equipped with elastic tissue made by nature to expand and contract.

THERE is an extra fee if you want to see the half-man, half-woman individual named Anna John Budd. Some kind of a pseudo-hermaphrodite, it has been on exhibition for many years. The Barker for this freak uses the same subtle appeal to morbid interest that was used in exhibiting Madame Elsie, a monstrosity known in the days when Rolph defeated McSheehy.

The current show uses two torture boxes as separate events. In the one a lady lies coffin-wise while weapons are made to pierce sides, top, and bottom of the box. She is uncomfortable, of course, but she merely squeezes in where the weapons are not. In the other the lady lies similarly while the coffin is cut in half at right angles to the length. The half with her torso is moved away from the half with her feet. She is actually all in the first-half. A store manikin's feet project from the second half.

RARELY do I miss a side show; it is genuinely superb to step again to the plain fresh air of the outside.

COLLEGE CLIPPINGS

Back in the 70's at Penn State College, the permission of the president as well as the approval of the Dean of Women was necessary to secure a date with a co-ed. It is estimated that students can obtain an education at the University of Arizona for as little as $320, including living costs. A Georgia Tech student unnecessarily repeated a course in the same room and under the same professor without either of them realizing the fact.

The proper means of loading will be the subject of a new course of instruction offered this fall at Butler University, Indianapolis. University of Chicago has the largest football stadium in the country—Soldiers' Field; it seats 110,000 people. Delegates from scores of colleges and universities in the United States will combine a national convention with a trip to the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago this month.

CO-EDS SUE
Two co-eds have brought suit against Texas A. & M. College, because they were denied admission to the college. According to T. O. Walton, president of the school, the college will lose prestige and distinction if women are admitted. Texas A. & M. has been for 50 years non-co-educational.

SPILLS SECRET PLAY
Because an ambitious young sports scribe, assistant editor for the Ohio State Lantern, spilled the beans by giving the inside story of a "secret play" that Coach Sam Willaman was planning to spring on Michigan, strict secrecy has been thrown around the activities of the Staters for the future. As a result of this indiscretion, the entire sports writing fraternity, including downtown newspapermen, were excluded from future practice sessions.

DO THEY? CAN THEY?
Do ships have eyes when they go to sea?
Are there springs in the ocean's bed?
Does Jolly Tar flow from a tree?
Can a river lose its head?

Are fishes crazy when they go in Seine?
Can an old hen sing her lay?
Can you bring relief to a window pane Or mend a break of day?
If you ate a square meal would the corners hurt?
Can you dig with the ace of spades?
Would you throw a rope to a drowning lemon?
Just to give a lemonade?

The Second Excursion

By KIRK TRUMAN

Kirk L. Truman was awarded this column space so that he might run a continued novelette. He was given to understand that the story should be planned to end before the end of the semester, and that it should break interestingly every 500 words, so that each issue of the paper would contain a definite development of the story, and thereby sustain the readers' interest.

Instead, he wrote a 30,000-word nightmare without enough action in the whole to supply excitement to one of his 500-word dribbles. So far the story has limped half way through as many words as one of his original chapters represented, and there are about thirty chapters to the whole! The fact is Kirk Truman could have filled the assignment to the letter had he tried, but evidently he didn't. I am writing this at a late hour on a Tuesday evening because the paper comes out Wednesday morning, and Kirk Truman's copy has not been received as yet. His copy should have been in last Thursday. As he indicated last week, he was to abruptly conclude his story in this issue of the paper. As a last resort, I will now conclude the story; may it be the last "excursion" of its variety I ever contact, editorially speaking!

Banks, a neurotic at large with a Chinese servant, lots of money, and a faculty for keeping out of police stations and detention institutions despite absolutely mad behavior, bounds into Van Horn's apartment. With wild, glistering eyes, he opens his mouth and says, "Mr. Van Horn; good evening."

A Drosophila Melanogaster fly alights on Van Horn's nose, and proceeds to run nonchalantly up the ridge of the nose to Van Horn's forehead. Banks stares intently at the fly; he notices that it is a cut-wing mutant, probably carrying dominantly gametes for wild-type wings. He ponders genetically: Is the cut-wing variation of the fly sex-linked and lethal in homologous females? The situation is terrific; Banks runs over to sob on Van Horn's shoulder.

"There, there, my little man, be stout-hearted; Louise and your mother still love you," vows Van Horn, as he, too, begins to cry.

"But what about Bernice?" Banks' tears are flowing faster, as he appears almost hysterical. Again, the situation is terrific; the characters of the story hear queer buzzing noises in their heads.

"Bernice; ah, Bernice; that is the question," Van Horn mutters, as he elaborately plucks the cut-wings off the Drosophila Melanogaster fly.

"What question?" queries Banks, quizzically, as he dries his tears.

"Oh, let's forget it all and go have an ice cream soda apiece," suggests Van Horn.

"What about Louise and Bernice?" "Oh, fie on both of them," concludes Banks, and arm in arm, they skipped from the apartment.
